From the mist enshrouded mountaintop fortress that is x&y Communications Headquarters, you're listening to the world-famous Mountain Top Podcast. And now, your host, Scot McKay.

Scot McKay 00:18

Awww, greetings gentlemen, and welcome to yet another episode of the world-famous Mountain Top Podcast. As always, I am your host, Scot McKay, you can find me at Scot McKay on X on YouTube just about any social media platform out there, except for Instagram, where I'm at real Scot McKay, join us on the Facebook group, The Mountain Top summit, but only if you want to join a group of like minded men who are headed in the same direction you are with women and with their life in general, which is of course, an upward trajectory, right. And if you haven't been to our website lately, we made a few changes there. Those of you guys who like to listen on Pandora, we finally got the links change there, because Spotify is no longer doing their thing, right. So the website has caught up accordingly. And of course, you can still download my free book sticking points solved, get involved with the latest master classes, or even catch up on the ones that have happened in the past. All of that great material that will help you focus on an area of getting better with women that you have a specific need to focus on right now. That's what the master classes are all about. And if you haven't talked to me for free for 25 or 30 minutes yet, hey, get on my calendar, and let's talk you'll find me to be exactly who you expect me to be. Speaking of guys, who are the real deal, and who are exactly who you expect them to be. My longtime friend, Tripp Kramer, aka trippadvice is back again today for the show. And it's been a few years hasn't it been trip?

Tripp Advice 01:52

Yeah, I really think I remember. I think it was either 18 or 19. Where we did the last so maybe three or four years ago? Quite a bit.

Scot McKay 02:02

Yeah, it was pre COVID For sure. And of course, both of us have been busy on all kinds of things. One of the things you've been busy on is compiling and incredibly impressive. 1 million YouTube subscribers. And you do great work there.

Tripp Advice 02:17

Yeah. Thanks, man. That's 12 years, I think in the making videos every week for 12 years. So your

Scot McKay 02:25

YouTube journey, man? Yeah, yeah. What we'll do is we'll link to trippadvice on YouTube, in the show notes, for sure. And of course, you're a podcaster like I am. I've been on your show a few times as well. And that's still going strong for you too, right?

Tripp Advice 02:41

Yeah, absolutely. I've been doing that since now. 2014, so almost 800 episodes at this point. So that's still going strong.

Scot McKay 02:51

That's pretty prolific. Right on, man. So the bottom line, gentlemen, is you have two guys who know what they're talking about right here before your very ears to listen to today. And we're going to talk about a subject that has somehow eluded this podcast. I mean, since we've started, I don't think we've ever talked about Halloween before at all. The topic, of course, is indeed Halloween.

Tripp Advice 03:15

Yeah, absolutely. 100% Halloween is one of those holidays that if you're good with women, boy, are you in for a bonanza. And if you struggle with women, especially in social situations, it can be kind of intimidating, because you start going to these costume parties and the women dress in ways they wouldn't normally dress. So that's probably a good place to start. And I'm gonna go ahead and let you riff on that entire concept, your way trip, go for it.

Scot McKay 03:19

Tripp Advice 03:44

 Tripp Advice 03:44

Yeah, totally. I mean, listen, Halloween is the time when women get to, you know, feel just free. And they get to dress in any way they want. And of course, it's an opportunity for them to, you know, show off how they look. So they they take that opportunity, as you can see, when you're when you're going out. You know, one of the things to you have to remember is that, even though they are dressed like that, you don't want to ever comment on it. Okay, you don't want to comment on it. You don't want to compliment it, because other guys are probably doing that. So during Halloween, you want to come in the opposite of what everyone else is doing. Because that's going to make you stick out and a lot of guys are gonna be pretty lame doing those same things. By the way, I want to interrupt myself and say, I'm getting over a cold. So this is why I sound like this. So hopefully everyone can can bear with me. But yeah,

 Scot McKay 04:42

I also sound even more real man. Yeah,

 Tripp Advice 04:45

for sure. I mean, I wouldn't want to miss to do an episode with you, Scott, especially when Scot in there and a group together of other coaches and he's like, hey, I want to talk about how I lead with someone. And I think I responded within five minutes because I'm like, Man, I love talking about this, I don't talk about enough. I don't think even I have an episode on my 800 Episode podcast about it. But it is really such a great opportunity to meet women because you can get so much volume and like this is the time to get a lot of volume. So, by the way, as an aside, and I'm gonna let you continue, I think the gravelly voice kind of you know, it's good for you. It kind of has this gravitas to you now suddenly a grizzled veteran of this stuff. It gives kind of an Art Buchwald characteristic to your commentary on things, which I don't know if that's a good thing or a bad thing when it comes to attracting women. But it certainly gives you kind of a manly feel. I'm sort of liking the gravelly voice.

 Scot McKay 05:16

 Tripp Advice 05:42

I'll take keep it. I'll take it. I'm glad. I'm glad I'm attracting you, Scott. It's working. Well, I'm at least trying to help you feel good about being on this show.

 Scot McKay 05:47

 Tripp Advice 05:50

Hopefully that's working good. Yes, it is.

Scot McKay 05:52

Even if you don't feel good physically, you feel good about being here. Exactly. So you left us at a Halloween party with a bunch of women who are dressed incredibly, sexually attractively and we're not allowed to talk about it. So what's a man to do trip?

Tripp Advice 06:07

All right, well, I want to start from the ground up, okay, with your eyes,

Scot McKay 06:10

right from the high heels all the way up to the little kitty cat ears on the top of her head.

Tripp Advice 06:16

Yeah, I want to go back to a time when I was. I was in college. And I remember you know my personality. If you know me on a personal level, I'm a goofy, funny, jokey kind of guy. And so for a few Halloween, I remember that I would take the Halloween costume to the jokey side where you can dress up and kind of have like a funny type of costume. Versus like, I don't know, a serious costume I would say. And so I remember a few different times where I did this. And it completely backfired. And it really gave me such an important lesson on how to dress for Halloween. Okay, so we'll start with that. So I remember when I was visiting a my friends college USC, and if you know USC in Southern California, a lot of attractive women there. And I was with my buddy My goodness their mascot is is a condom. Exactly the Trojans. How can you not have good looking women at a college where your mascot is named after a condom? Yeah, yeah, there may be a chicken and an egg there. But I digress.

Scot McKay 07:13

Tripp Advice 07:27

So we're so we're at this Halloween party. And there was a theme to it. And the theme was safety. Okay, so safety. And that was an interesting thing. And it's like, okay, you know, how can we address safety? And so there was anything safety. There was people dressed up as cops, superheroes, firemen, things like that. All kinds of cool stuff. Me and my buddy didn't want to do that. We wanted to be more fun as if women aren't attracted to men in uniform or anything. Right, exactly. There was an opportunity missed there for sure. I can't wait to hear this. Go ahead.

Scot McKay 07:54

 Tripp Advice 08:03

Yeah, well, we didn't dress them in the uniform. Not at all. Instead, we dressed as airbags.

 Scot McKay 08:12

See, I was expecting you are going to dress as like orange cones, or somehow that would have just gotten better, actually.

 Tripp Advice 08:16

 Scot McKay 08:19

Well, slightly. That's why I laughed out loud because I was dreading having to hear that you guys had to endure being dressed like orange safety cones all night. But man, this is even worse. I mean, crash test dummies would have been better than airbags

 Tripp Advice 08:34

100%. Yeah, yes. Because also, if you're a cone, they can at least tell your cone. But how do you dress as a as an aerobic? Well, you basically dressed in all white, and you dress like a fat person, you put a big pillow underneath your underneath your shirt. And I don't know it. Maybe we wrote airbag down there. And I just remember being on the dance floor as an airbag. And I'll never forget the moment, I was just like, when I would literally look at women cringe at me. And I was like, what the hell that I do. And so I learned my lesson on that day. But I didn't learn it all the way. Because I remember a few years later, I, I would do the same thing. Just try to be funny and try to dress up. Nothing is as funny as the airbag. But then I remember I would see some like guide friends dress up in college, and they would be dressing as like pilots, and maybe vampires and just stuff that was cool. And then finally it clicked with me and maybe this is obvious to some of you guys. I don't know, it wasn't for me, you know? So maybe some of you guys are like, Yeah, but maybe others are like good point is that you just want to dress cool, you know, like you want to dress as someone who would be an actual fantasy for a woman, like a cop or a vampire or a pilot.

 Scot McKay 09:58

Well, here's a hint that That's what the women are doing. They do it instinctively. They dress like sexy nurses and a little catsuits. And all these things that make us fantasize over them like hot for teacher outfits and stuff like that. They do this instinctively, they figured it out. We as men are the big dorks who can't seem to get it to our heads, right? Well, I would assume that if they figured out how to dress as an airbag, it would work. But you know, the bail side?

Tripp Advice 10:21

Scot McKay 10:27

They wouldn't do it trip. That's the bottom line. Right?

Tripp Advice 10:30

That is the bottom line. Yeah, they wouldn't do it. Exactly.

Scot McKay 10:33

So well, at least you didn't dress as the back end of a two man horse outfit. That's probably the least effective way to attract women.

Tripp Advice 10:41

It's true. You won't even be there. Yeah.

Scot McKay 10:43

So you wouldn't be there. I mean, we're not able to even see you, which is probably a good tip right there. If you're going to go to a party with women, they have to be able to see you and know who you are, and be able to get to know you. You can even be behind some anonymous Star Wars Stormtrooper outfit. Even. You know what I mean?

Tripp Advice 11:01

Exactly. Yeah. So bottom line is, you don't need to, I wouldn't get too clever. You know, I would dress as I mean, if you wanted to do something kind of outlandish that would get people you know, talking to you like something really interesting where you actually had lots of makeup and it was crazy. That's one thing. But if you're not into that most guys aren't, you know, dresses, something very simple. And that would be considered cool and sexy. Okay. Yes. And masculine. Yes. Good point there. Scot masculine, thank you. airbags, not masculine or feminine either.

Scot McKay 11:37

Airbags aren't very manly, because crashing your car into a utility pole isn't exactly manly or masculine in and of itself, right?

 Tripp Advice 11:46

Yeah. inanimate objects are usually not that sexy. Also, you know, and that's what an airbag is a big, white fluffy.

 Scot McKay 11:53

So let's talk about the women themselves. Yes, let's do it. That's one of my favorite subjects. And I know it's yours, too. All right. So let's talk about the psychology of an attractive woman on Halloween trip, is she letting her inner slet come out and play even though that's not really who she is? She can kind of play dress up and pretend for a brief moment? Or is it more likely, or at least equally likely that this is kind of their inhibitions going away for one night. And this is a side of them, they really want to come out and play because it represents something authentic?

 Tripp Advice 12:29

I think that it is yeah, I mean, it definitely is an opportunity for them to unleash that side of them that they can't normally unleash. And here's the thing, though, is that just because they might be unleashing that side that the way they dress, that doesn't necessarily mean that's how they're going to act, right, there's still gonna be a lot of women who might be dressed in that sexy, whatever outfit, but they're still going to be kind of shy, they're not going to be necessarily, you know, completely out to play and loose as a goose. But still, they're enjoying the fact that guys are looking at them. And they get to, you know, be that that person or live this kind of fantasy that they've always wanted to live. You know, those are my favorite women at the whole party. Which ones the ones that are dressed like that? Yeah, the ones who are dressed like that, and are still kind of shy and reserved and being their own personality, even though they're so out there with their costumes sexually. Because, man, you're looking at them from a completely different and decidedly sexier perspective. And yet, they're still themselves under there. And wow, is that ever intriguing? And sexy as hell? You know?

 Scot McKay 13:12

 Tripp Advice 13:38

Yeah, totally.

 Scot McKay 13:39

That's why they're my favorite. You know, when they're acting just slutty, regardless of whether

That's why they're my favorite. You know, when they're acting just slutty, regardless of whether that's their real personality or not. That doesn't intrigue me personally, as much as when they're really kind of low key conservative in their personality type, but they're wearing that outfit at the same time.

 Tripp Advice 13:56

But you know, also Scot, I don't I mean, I don't even care. Like I don't even care what what they're like or what they're trying to do. It doesn't it doesn't matter to me on Halloween, versus any other night, whether they're shy or not shy, or they're coming out to play or not. I like Halloween, because it makes it just 10 times easier to get the volume and get into conversation. So if you're a guy who's really shy, and you want to use this as an opportunity to meet a lot of women, you have so many ends, it's insane. Because everyone's dressed up. So you don't have to just go up and say hi, you can just go up and you can comment on the costume. And I have a great tip. I wonder if you're gonna like this one, Scott. I have a great tip for guys that they can do that works really well to get a lot of approaches and when they go out during Halloween, whether it's at a party or at a bar, whatever it is. And here it is. Okay. When you go up, you're going to comment on their costume, but you're going to get it wrong. Okay, but it's going to be so obviously wrong. So you're gonna go up to them, and you're going to comment, and instead of saying what every other guy is saying, which is like, Oh, you must be Little Red Riding Hood, or you must be Snow White, or whatever it is, you're just gonna get something totally different. Now, why do we do this? We do this because we want to get a reaction out of them. Right? If you go up to them, and they say, Oh, look, a cool little red riding hood. They're gonna be like, yep, like, not that interesting, right? Unless they think that you're somewhat physically attractive, then maybe that's going to help you. But if you're not, their type is not going to do anything. So you need to get in there to spark some sort of emotion. And the best way to do that is by guessing completely wrong, even if it pisses them off. Good. We want some sort of emotion out of them. You know, sometimes it's going to work. Sometimes it's not. Maybe they're going to be like, Oh, no, what are you talking about? Get away. That's fine. I'd rather take the risk. Because you're not going to do anything offensive either. Right? So I'm just thinking like off the top of my head. You might go up to a girl who's in Little Red Riding Hood uniform. And then you might comment and you might say, oh, wait a minute. Wait, are you that girl from The Handmaid's Tale?

 Scot McKay 16:16

Well, look, if she has a sense of humor, she's gonna burst out laughing

 Tripp Advice 16:21

100% And if she's seen that, she's gonna love it, and guess what, even if she hasn't seen that. She's gonna be like, No, what's Handmaid's Tale, and you're gonna be like, what? It's like the best show ever. Have you not seen the show? And then you'll pull it up on your phone and you show her? Look how you know, you're just totally engaged in conversation. And then you can laugh about it and joke about it and whatever. And then from there, move on. Okay, not from her. But from that topic of conversation.

Scot McKay 16:48

So let me jump in here because there's a mental level tip there. Let's harken back to five minutes ago when we were talking about how stupid we as men can be when we're picking out a Halloween costume trying to overthink it and be super creative, to the detriment of our own sexual attractiveness. The Handmaid's Tale outfit is a primo example of the kind of Halloween costume. No sexy woman is ever going to choose even as a joke. It's never going to happen. She's never going to think, oh, this will really throw all the guys off and make them wonder about me. No, they won't even do it. They instinctively know better. So I mean, that's like a mental level tip right there. And that's probably what guys are thinking listening to this like, okay, there's no chance a woman's ever going to show up in a Handmaid's Tale outfit anyway, which makes us even funnier. That's why I laughed. Let's see. So when you apply that back to what we're talking about, it really drives the point home.

Tripp Advice 17:48

Exactly. Yeah, exactly. And listen, that was a really good example. And I hope to go out and see a woman in a little bit biting outfit does use that. And by the way, that was so clever. Don't worry about it. Like you don't have to be as clever as that. Just pick something completely random that might look like it or might not. And also, I don't want this tip to prevent you from going in approaching. If you sit there and you're taking me longer than 15 seconds to come up with something, then just go up and approach because I don't want you overthinking it. That's not the point. It's not the point is to be clever. It just to get up there and start a conversation. And it's a nice way to do it on Halloween because you're making a joke. And off the bat, it's going to be jokey and funny. And it's going to spike emotion. And you can do that to literally every single girl at the party. So that's tip number one. I guess it's Tip Number. Tip number two, really.

Scot McKay 18:41

And that's excellent advice. And I want to add a couple of things to it that I thought of while you were talking. First of all, one of the things I tell men is to get out of your own head and start being observant, looking around at what's going on. Whenever you're approaching a woman. There's no easier place to do that than a Halloween party, right? I mean, if you can look at a woman's costume, and you're still at a loss for anything to say to her, all I have to say is look harder. Okay. I'm going to add another way to approach the situation you just talked about, that I think maybe is at least as effective, especially if you're good at reading the room, which every man should be socially, and you decide that her personality can handle it. Okay? Women love fantasy. Women love role playing, and Girls Just Want to Have Fun, right? So if her costume lends itself to helping her get in character, and play up that fantasy a little bit, I would say that inspiring that in her is at least as good as challenging her costume a bit as you described, because it'll help her kind of get into the mood. And it's also all about her. So for example, I mean, I might just go up to a woman who's dressed like a kitty cat and go meow and just see what she says. You know, I've actually done that before. And the woman responded by pulling my chest up like a little kitty cat and went around her back to me. Or if she's dressed like Little Red Riding Hood, I'd walk up to her and say, so what's your plan for staying away from all the big bad wolves tonight, just to see what she says, you know, just to get her into character and into that mood, because that's an opportunity to help a woman get into a place where women naturally like to go, simply because you're in a Halloween environment. So it's easier, right? And they're kind of fantasizing a little already anyway. So I mean, that may be another way. I mean, it's not nagging them, like, hey, you know, you're just like my bratty little sister, aren't you when she's dressed like Goldilocks or something. But I think in a certain situation with a guy who has some confidence about him, that alternate approach could work wonders. It can be magical.

 Tripp Advice 20:51

Yeah, I mean, roleplay is what we're doing, right? That's Halloween. And if you get a good line, and it works, I mean, you're golden, right? Just a great way to do it. And I think that leads to a conversation too. I mean, listen to what she says in response. And then you're rolling. But either way, I just want to really load these guys up with ways to go about doing Halloween when women are around. So what's your second tip trip? Go for it?

 Scot McKay 20:59

 Tripp Advice 21:16

Cool. So well, actually, this is the third first was don't dress goofy. Don't dress like an airbag? Yeah, Veyron, number two, you know, use that opener. Number three is really kind of similar to number two, but just an extension of it is just the volume. Okay? Halloween is more social than probably any other holiday. And that makes it a great excuse to be talking to so many people. And you want to be part of that crowd. So don't just stick with one girl for so long. Okay, because you never know. Like, you might stick with one girl for so long and 20 minutes and you guys are having a ball because Halloween and we're social and then she does have a boyfriend. Right? So now you just wasted 20 minutes.

 Scot McKay 22:05

Oh, man. And everybody in the audience just collectively groaned at that one. Because man, we can all relate. Yeah. 100 fantasy. And so are you that she forgot to mention? Oh, yeah. Back in the real world. I have a boyfriend.

 Tripp Advice 22:20

Right. Exactly. Exactly. Now, if you do it, if you do it right, then hopefully 20 minutes in, you guys have already been flirting enough where she's told you before that. But if you're more on the beginner front, that could absolutely happen. I would like to take Halloween as more quantity over quality. Okay, so what I mean is by interaction, not not quality of woman, but interaction, the quality of the interaction. I would rather focus on quantity, a lot more. I want to collect numbers. I want to talk to as many women as I can. I want to start conversations with as many women as I can. Why not? Because at the end of the night, if you collect anywhere between 1015 20 numbers, I know that sounds insane. But it's very easy to do, especially on a night like Halloween, you bet you click that many numbers, I guarantee that you'll convert at least five of those into a date. Yeah, can you believe that one night out, and you can get five dates like that is insane, and more quality than online dating, right? There's for sure quality of an online date, right Scot versus a date that you meet out and about, you've already had that connection. So you're not you know, it's almost like when you go into online date, nothing wrong with online dating, it's great. But I'm just seeing like an online date is practically a blind date, because you don't know anything about the person. And you're about to see what this is like conversing with them for the very first time where you've already done that. So online date is almost like you're starting at negative one. Whereas like a date from someone you met in person, like at a Halloween party is like starting at one, right? It's already past that initial phase of who they are. I mean, except for the fact that maybe you've seen them in costume, and they're gonna look a little different.

Scot McKay 24:03

Yeah, 100% a couple of things there. First of all, because women are in costume and they look sexier, is kind of going to be the same sort of advantage for a guy who takes the bull by the proverbial horns, that he would get at, say, the beach or at the gym. Men tend to become wealthier as a general rule, and back down more easily from approaching women, the sexier those women look. So if you're the guy who's making conversation with women at this party, there may be fewer of you guys competing for all those hotties than you think. That's the first thing. Second of all, to kind of shift gears a little bit. You were talking about quantity right as well as quality. I think we should have more dress up days in general than our holidays. It's almost shameful of our culture to give us a paltry one day a year to dress up. And then that one holiday also about evil and ugliness and other bad stuff. I mean, other cultures do this India has like five or six holidays a year where they dress up. I mean, what's wrong with us? Why don't we like playing dress up and having a little bit of a fantasy? or god forbid, some fun? We should have these opportunities like quarterly, not annually, you know, in the Jewish religion, there's, there's a dress up holiday, it's called Torah. It's in the spring, and what it's all about, especially even in a more religious sector, it's all about dressing up and getting wasted. So that's what people that's a Jewish people do on Purim.

Tripp Advice 25:14

Scot McKay 25:34

But so you get all dressed up and get for snicker. Yeah, exactly.

Tripp Advice 25:37

Maybe, maybe not. Maybe that's not the time you go ahead. And girls. I'm just saying, Yeah, there's definitely a lot of other cultures out there that that do this wonderful. I'm also going to add that there's more to Halloween than simply go into Halloween parties and talking to a bunch of women. If you really want to maximize ways you can do well, with a woman on Halloween. Let's say you're already dating a woman, you met her some time before Halloween, and either you met her online, you've had coffee with her, let me tell you something that's golden that I have direct experience with, invite her over to your place on Halloween to help you hand out candy to the kids. Now, I'll tell you why this is golden. First of all, because there's this plan situation where you're going to have constant interruption, she's going to feel like well, you know, it's not like I'm going into his lair, and he's not going to do something untoward. Or she can't trust the situation. It's got this built in factor where you're going to be doing something that social and inherently involves other people showing up. So if she has any kind of latent fear of her coming to your place, which, you know, admittedly, if you're a guy who's good at making women feel safe and comfortable, you're going to have women come over to your place, because not only do they already feel safe and comfortable around you, they're already feeling a little attraction. And maybe they're not even really worried about something sexual happening, they might actually be looking forward to it. But I'll tell you, when the kids start knocking on the door, and you and the girl are giving out candy to those kids, it's a wonderful time to show that you're interactive with children, and that you're good with children as a guy. And you know, the way to talk to children is very simple gentlemen, talk to them, like normal adults, without all the heavy stuff. That's all there is to it. And they respond well to that. So you comment on the kids costumes, you interact with the woman about the kids costumes. And the dynamic that happens before your very eyes, is you start bonding with this woman. It's almost like you're playing house in a weird sort of way, right? So if she's a woman you really like and maybe even see as potential relationship material, the two of you are going to start seeing each other as a team at your home, doing things that couples do, and she won't even really have seen it coming. And of course, you can make her laugh. And every time the door closes, you have a little bit of time between when the kids come and knock on your door the next time, assuming you're in a neighborhood where it's not going to be a constant barrage for two hours, then you know, you can flirt with her and maybe kiss her and you know, sneak in something like that. So that when the next kid knocks on the door, and you have to be all normal, and you know, straight laced again, it'll kind of even be hornier. And sexier. Women love that stuff. The other part of this strategy that is so amazingly powerful, is kids generally stop knocking on the door around 8:30 or nine o'clock, right. And then you're together with her, just the two of you. And you've had this experience together. And it's just amazing how likely it is for sex to happen. This is coming from personal experience, you know, but again, this is a different kind of perspective than that of, hey, I need to go out and meet a bunch of women and do a lot of approaching this is if you have a woman you'd like to get closer to. And Halloween just happens to be going on. You know what I mean?

Scot McKay 25:46

Scott Murray 28:10

Tripp Advice 29:04

Totally. I'll even add in a little tip to that night, go for it. One thing you can do that I've done in the past wasn't specifically in Halloween, but you could totally do it on Halloween is just a good activity. A fun one to do is make homemade cider, which is really easy to do you just like look online to get a recipe just basically a bunch of fall seasonings and then apple cider and then you boil it all together and steam it so really easy, really fun, really delicious. And the house was great. house smells great. And if you guys like to drink alcohol, you can even add whiskey to it. And if you don't drink alcohol, you don't have to so really, you can't lose either way and it makes it more fun and something just to do together in a while you guys are getting ready for the trick or treaters and all that.

Now that's an underrated tip because women are indeed multisensory when it comes to sexual attraction and all A lot of guys, oh, I don't know, trip, maybe we watch too much porn or what have you. But it's a lot more than just what you see and what you hear with women. You know, the smells, the tastes, the touches, all of that contributes to women being sexually turned on. Great tip. Great tip. Well, I'll tell you, we're running out of time. But I think we've really empower these guys with some heavy Halloween artillery. I don't know if that's the right context to put it all in. But certainly some great ways to approach Halloween, and the women who are all dressed up. And if you have a woman in your life, you got some great tips on how to handle that, too. It's been a great show, and a lot of fun to trip. And what I want to do right now is direct these guys to your podcast, which like I said, I've been a guest on and you've had a lot of other guests on as well and a whole lot of episodes. So if you're listening to this podcast you'll most likely like trips to. And that show is called how to talk to girls. And it's been on for ages has lots of listeners. You can find it on Apple podcasts for sure, as well as Pandora and Google Play. And trip you have anything else to say about your podcast that I missed out on there? No, I mean, listen, I'm putting out episodes twice a week at this point.
